BEYOND THE RIVER.

Time is a river deep and wide;
And while along its banks we stray,
We see it's loved ones o'er its tide
Sail from our sight away, away.
Where are they sped—they who return
No more to glad our longing eyes?
They've passed from life's contracted bourne
To land unseen, unknown that lies
Beyond the river.

'Tis hid from view; but we may guess
How beautiful that realm must be;
For gleamings of its loveliness
In visions granted oft we see.
The very clouds that o'er it throw
Their veil, upraised for mortal sight,
With gold and purple tintings glow,
Reflected from the glorious light
Beyond the river.

And gentle airs, so sweet, so calm,
Steal sometimes from that viewless sphere;
The mourner feels their breath of balm,
And soothed sorrow dries the tear.
And sometimes list'ning ear may gain
Entrancing sound that hither floats,
The echo of the distant strain
Of harps' and voices' blended notes,
Beyond the river.

There are our loved ones in their rest;
They've crossed Time's river; now no more
They heed the bubbles on its breast,
Nor feel the storms that sweep its shore,
But their pure love can live, can last,
They look for us their home to share;
When we in turn away have passed,
What joyful greetings wait us there,
Beyond the river.

A MIDNIGHT ADVENTURE.

Women often possess presence of mind, and the power of self-control, under circumstances of imminent peril, which seem almost foreign to their nature, and beyond the endurance of a delicate physical organization. A striking instance of self-command, by a lady whose fears must have been powerfully excited, and whose life of affluence had probably never before given her nerves any severer test than is incident to the vexations of domestic cares, is given in a late number of Chambers' Journal. We copy the adventure, premising, by way of an explanation, that the lady was the daughter of a rector, residing in a quiet English country village, and was upon the eve of marriage.

The wedding-day was to be on the morrow of that on which our adventure happened. Grand preparations were made for the wedding, and the rector's fine old plate, and the costly gifts of the bride, were discussed with pride and pleasure at the "Hare and Hounds," in the presence of some strangers who had come down to a prize-fight which had taken place in the neighborhood.

That night, Adelaide, who occupied a separate room from her sister, sat up late—long after all the household had retired to rest. She had had a long interview with her father, and had been reading a chapter in the Bible to which he had directed her attention, and had packed up her jewels, etc. She was, consequently, still dressed when the church clock tolled midnight. As it ceased, she fancied she heard a noise like that of a file. She listened, but could distinguish nothing clearly. It might have been made by some of the servants still about, or perhaps it was only the creaking of the old trees. She heard nothing but the sighing of the winter winds for many minutes afterwards. House-breakers were myths in primitive Thyndon; and the bride-elect, without a thought of fear, resumed her occupation.

She was gazing on a glittering set of diamonds, destined to be worn at the wedding, when her bed-room door softly opened. She turned, looked up, and beheld a man with a black mask, holding a pistol in his hand, standing before her.

She did not scream, for her thought was for her father, who slept in the next room, and to whom any sudden alarm might be death, for he was old, feeble, and suffering from heart complaint. She confronted the robber boldly, and addressed him in a whisper:

"You have come," said she, "to rob us? Spare your soul the awful guilt of murder! My father sleeps next to my room, and to be startled from his sleep would kill him.—Make no noise, I beg of you."

The fellow was astonished and cowed.

"We won't make any noise," he replied, "if you give us everything quietly."

Adelaide drew back and let him take her jewels—not without a pang, for they were precious love gifts,—remarking at the same time that two more masked ruffians stood at the half-opened door.—As he took the jewel-case and watch from the table, and demanded her purse, she asked him if he intended to go into her father's room. She received a surly affirmative. He "wasn't agoing to run all the risk, and leave half the tin behind!" She proposed instantly that she should go herself, saying:

"I will bring you whatever you wish, and you may guard me thither, and kill me if I play false to you."

The fellow consulted his comrades, and, after a short parley, they agreed to the proposal; and, with a pistol pointed at her head, the dauntless girl crossed the passage, and entered the old rector's room. Very gently she stole across the room, and, removing his purse, watch, keys and desk, she gave them up to the robbers, who stood at the door. The old man slept peacefully and very calmly, thus guarded by his child, who softly shut the door, and demanded if the robbers were yet satisfied.

The leader replied that they should be when they had got the show of plate that was spread out below; and, as they couldn't let her out of sight, she must go with them. In compliance with this mandate, she followed them down stairs to the dining-room, where a splendid wedding breakfast had been laid to save hurry and trouble on the morrow. To her surprise, the fellows—eight in number—seated themselves and prepared to make a good meal. They ordered her to get them some wine, and told her to cut up her own wedding-cake for them; and then, seated at the head of the table, she was compelled to preside at this extraordinary revel.

They ate, drank, laughed and joked; and Adelaide, quick of ear and eye, had thus time to study, in her quiet way, the figures and the voices of the whole set.

When the repast was ended, and the plate transferred to a sack, the robbers prepared to depart, whispering together and glancing at the young lady. For the first time Adelaide's courage gave way, and she trembled; but it was not a consultation against her, as it proved. The leader approached her, and told her that they did not wish to harm her—that she was "a jolly wench, reg'lar game," and they wouldn't hurt her; but that she must swear not to give the alarm till nine or ten the next day, when they should be off all safe. To this, of course, she was obliged to assent, and then they all insisted on shaking hands with her.—She noticed during this parting ceremony that one of the ruffians had only three fingers on his left hand.

Alone, and in the despoiled room, Adelaide awaited the first gleam of daylight; then, as the robbers did not return, feeling faint and exhausted, she undressed, and fell into a disturbed slumber. The consternation of the family next morning may be imagined; and Adelaide's story was still more astonishing than the fact of the robbery itself. Police were sent for from London, and they, guided by Adelaide's lucid description of her midnight guests, actually succeeded in capturing every one of the gang, whom the young girl had no difficulty in identifying and swearing to, the "three-fingered Jack" being the guiding clue to the discovery. The stolen property was nearly all recovered, and the old rector always declared—and with truth—that he owed his life to the self-possession and judgment of his eldest daughter.

The only ill effects of the great trial to her nerves, was a disposition on the part of the young heroine to listen to midnight sounds, and start uneasily from troubled dreams; but time and change of residence soon effected a cure.

CUTTING THE PRAYERS DOWN.—Queen Victoria has issued a proclamation forbidding in future the use of the special services in the Book of Common Prayer for the three state holidays known as the "Gunpowder Plot," "Martyrdom of Charles I," and "Restoration of Charles II."

A CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.—Dr. Beck, of Dantzic, has just made a curious discovery. He has found an antidote, or rather, counter-poison, for ardent spirits. It is a mineral paste which he encloses in an olive, and which, once absorbed, destroys not only the rising effect, but likewise the disastrous consequences of drunkenness. He tried several experiments on a Pole, an irreclaimable drunkard. The individual, named Radevil, swallowed three bottles of brandy in succession, and after each bottle ate an olive prepared by the doctor. He experienced neither the effect of drunkenness nor the slightest sickness.

THE MORTARA AFFAIR—DEPUTATION TO THE POPE.—At a meeting of the Board of Deputies, held on Wednesday the 22d of December, the President in the chair, it was unanimously resolved to memorialize the Pope direct and to request Sir Moses Montefiore to proceed to Rome in person, in conjunction with some other deputies, in order to support the objects of the petition.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Senator Wheeler, of the 9th district, introduced a resolution in the upper house of the State Legislature the week before last, requesting the President to interfere in the Mortara case, but it was laid over for the day. It will, however, doubtless be again brought forward.

A memorial is being circulated in Albany, and is receiving numerous signatures there, calling upon the State Legislature to use their influence with the U.S. government in reference to interference in the Mortara case. We understand a copy has been transmitted to the Executive Committee of the B.R.U.C.I.C.N.Y.

HOLLAND.—Herr J. E. Goldsmith, son of the Rev. E. Goldsmith of this city, has been appointed professor of Ancient Laws at the Leyden University. This is the first time that an Israelite has attained that position in Holland, the appointment being made for life and made by the king. It is the highest position that a literary man can hold in Holland, and is considered a well deserved honor.—Jewish Messenger.

THE MISSION TO ROME.—We learn from good authority that Sir Moses Montefiore has declared his willingness to go to Rome, in order to present in person the memorial to the Pope, praying for the restoration of the boy Mortara to his parents, and that Lady Montefiore will accompany him, should her health permit of it.

VIENNA—IMPERIAL CHARITY.—Of the funds placed at the disposal of the minister of the interior for charitable purposes on the birth of an heir apparent, 500 florins were sent to each of the nine Israelitish charitable institutions.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF PARIS AND M. VEUILLOT.—The Univers was guilty of a suppressio veri in saying that the Abbe Delacoutre had been censured by his ecclesiastical superiors for the pamphlet which he wrote against the abduction of the boy Mortara. The object was to lead people to suppose that he had been censured by the Archbishop of Paris; the fact is that the Archbishop and all the members of his council, except two, share the Abbe Delacoutre's opinions as to the Mortara case. The censure came from Rome, through the Pope's Nuncio, and the Archbishop in transmitting the Roman mandate to Abbe Delacoutre was a mere conduit-pipe.

ST. PETERSBURG — LIBERALISM. The Emperor will shortly issue a decree of general toleration. The council of ministers have this document under consideration now.

The Mortara Case.

The following account taken from an article in the Catholic Herald and Visitor published in Philadelphia, and enclosed by L. B. Binsse, Esq., Consul of the Pontifical States to the editor of the N. Y. Herald with a request to publish it in order that the "Catholic side of the question may be fairly set forth," will give our readers their version of the Mortara affair, and show how they attempt to justify the action of the Roman authorities. Comment is needless:

This Mortara affair has been so much talked of and is so well known that it may seem almost unnecessary to say what it is. It is, however, always preferable, always safest, to state clearly at the time the true point in question; and we, therefore, in a few words, will state again what it is, this Mortara affair. It became known that a child, seven years of age, the son of Jewish parents, residing in Bologna, had been baptized when very young by a Catholic servant living in the family. The baptism was shown to be valid by an examination made most carefully by the Roman congregation; the persons who took part in it, and happily there were several, gave their testimony under oath. We would here remark that it ought to be sufficient to know that Christians declared the baptism to be valid, to know it to be so, for surely Jews and unbelieving scoffers should not be allowed to say how baptism must be administered, so as to produce sacramental effect. This known, it remained to decide whether the baptized child should be a Jew or a Christian. In a Jew family it was impossible for him to grow up a Christian, and he was therefore placed in a Christian school, where his family was freely admitted to visit him, but where he is taught the doctrines of Christianity. There his education shall be finished, when he will be free to go wherever he may choose, and to believe whatever he may think fit.

Mr. Binsse could not but have known that the last clause is not correct. If the child is forced into the Church, even by an involuntary baptism, and he, by this act, is declared a Christian by the Church, he may, perhaps, after his education is finished—that is, in other words, when or if the Jesuits allow him to escape their all-powerful grasp—"be free to go wherever he may choose," as this liberty of citizens—to live where they like—is but a mere matter of police; but, once declared a Christian, he will not be allowed "to believe whatever he may think fit" The Roman Catholic Church is bound to chastise all baptized persons—Protestants or other heretics—whenever and wherever she has the power; and no Catholic can be so ignorant of this fact as to mean it honestly when he says that a person can believe what he likes, where the Church has the power—and we have shown that she is ubiquitous, and has her familiars even in British India.

OVERRULE ALL THEIR DOINGS!—The clergyman who made the prayer in the House of Representatives at Washington on the last day of the session, unwittingly perhaps, supplicated a general veto on the legislation of the session from the Supreme Being as follows: "Be with them (the members) in their weakness,—strengthen them with thy strength,—scan with searcing eye all their legislative acts,—and we pray Thee, O Lord, that thou wilt overrule all their doings!

The King of Prussia.

It is well known that the King of Prussia is traveling in Italy for his health, and that the fact in his case is that he is insane. His too sanguine temper, under the continual influence of champagne, to which he was a slave night and day, brought about mental derangement. A letter dated at Genoa on the 6th December, gives the following account of his Majesty at dinner:

It appears, before coming to Italy, that for about three hours every day he was quite crazy; but since his arrival he has much improved, and there were great hopes that the pristine vigor of intellect of which he was formerly posessed would be quite restored. Every day the aberrations were less decided, and finally he was so much better that the doctors allowed a small dinner party. The royal patient was sane all day, received his guests, chatted, laughed, and was quite jolly; the dinner was anounced, the company marched in, the King of course took his place at the head of the table, and everybody waited for him to set the example to put their spoons in their mouths. But instead of doing what was expected of him, his Majesty deliberately washed his face in the soup, and then complacently smiling on his friends, the long strings of vermacelli hanging down over his eyes and nose, and in his hair and moustache. You may imagine the effect—no one dared to laugh, however, and they had to sit out the dinner with his ridiculous figure-head covered with gravy (for he sternly refused towels), talking to them all the while. Some Central African traveler relates that the dandies in an Abysinian (I think it was) town used to put a pound of butter on their heads and then walk in the sun; but I think my story is the best.

RETRIBUTION.—We do hear some remarkable things sometimes, which the world is apt to place to chance, but which we, with a much greater right, place to the account of the Cause of all causes, who often punishes the evil doer in a manner apparent to our own eyes. A case which has just come within our own knowledge fully establishes our position, although others may still say it is chance; and so it may be. Let them indulge in their opinions; we with the same right hold to our ideas.

One of our co-religionists arrived from Europe some years since, married, had a family, and appeared to be doing well. Some few months ago we received certified documents that he had a wife in Europe, and asking our assistance to influence him to send his wife a letter of divorce. We performed our duty, but were unsuccessful. He would not listen to any proposal; he was determined not to release her from her tie, although he had acted so base a part to her. We then told him, by way of threat, that a suit would be instituted against him for bigamy; but he, presuming on our national feelings, that we would take no part in aught that would bring reproach on Israel, still refused to listen to our words. Three weeks ago, in the fullness of health, he was struck down by death, and she is now released without his consent!—Jewish Messenger.

LAGER BEER.—The Rev. John Long delivered a lecture in Lynchburg, Va., on Sunday last, against lager beer, and attributed the intellectual decay of the German race to that liquid.

Age of Animals.

A bear rarely exceeds 20 years; a fox, 14 or 15; lions are long-lived—Pompey lived to the age of 70; the average of cats is 15 years; rabbits, 7; elephants have been known to live to the great age of 400 years. When Alexander the Great had conquered Porus, King of India, he took a great elephant, which had fought valiantly for the King, named him Ajax, dedicated him to the sun, and let him go, with this inscription—"Alexander, the son of Jupiter, has dedicated Ajax to the sun." This elephant was found 354 years after. Pigs have been known to live to the age of 30 years; the rhinoceros to 20; a horse has been known to live to the age of 62, but rarely 25 years; camels sometimes live to the age of 100 years; stags are long-lived; sheep seldom exceed the age of 10; cows live 15 years. Cuvier considers it probable that whales live to the age of 1,000 years; dolphins and porpoises attain the age of 30. An eagle died at Vienna at the age of 105. Ravens have frequently reached the age of 100. Swans have been known to live to the age of 360. Mr. Mallerton has the skeleton of a swan that lived to the age of 260 years. Pelicans are long-lived. A tortoise has been known to live to the age of 107 years.

Interesting Fact.

Prof. Maury, in his lecture on the Atlantic Cable announces the interesting fact that animal matter at the bottom of the deep sea, owing to the superincumbent pressure, the expulsion of light and heat and the saline properties of the water, could not decompose, but must remain precisely in the state in which it has been deposited for ages and ages. So that Pharaoh and his host, when the last trump shall sound, and the sea give up its dead, shall come forth fresh in feature and perfect in form as when, in pursuit of the children of Israel, they were engulfed by the waves of the Red Sea. This conclusion is reached by numerous ingenious expiriments, one of which was the sinking of a cannon-ball through which was an apparatus for grappling sediment from the bottom, in which sediment were found remains of animal life, fresh as when extinct, such as elams and other small shell fish.

BULGARIA—KIDNAPPING.—The Gazette of Temeswar contains in its columns the following infamous parallel to the Mortara case. In a village situated near Bourgas the Turks have carried off a Bulgarian child, to force him to embrace Islamism. The consular agents of Bourgas, both Sardinian and Greek, went to Aukialo, the chief town of the district, to demand back the child from the Lieutenant-Governer, but they could obtain no satisfaction. The agents then went to Varna, in order to get the Governor's order for its restoration. It is well known that a Christian can not, even voluntarily, become a Mahommedan, unless he has attained the age of 16 years, and renewed three times his wish to embrace the Turkish religion. As the Bulgarian child has not yet reached the age required, there is room to hope that he will be returned.

LIBEL SUIT AGAINST THE UNIVERS.

Getting Wiser at Last.

Our readers will remember the severe article which we wrote, in number 2 of the present volume, against the libel suit entered by the Central Consistory of the Israelites of France against M. Veuillot, editor of the Univers. We are glad to see from the latest number of Les Archives Israelites, that the Consistory, becoming awake to the impropriety of such a course, have concluded to drop the suit.

Passion is one of the causes of our ruin, and it reflects very discreditably upon us that, though Israel is not swayed by the lower passions to that extent as the commission of brutal crimes, in general, however, we are too impulsive, too devoid of the רוח חן, the true ornament of man.—We, indeed, find thousands of individuals who act totally under the influence of the passions; while it is but here and there that we see the few act under the guidance of a purified consciousness. Our Christian neighbors, who observe us in in our walks of life (where men have a fuller view of others than themselves), forgetting that we can retort the charge, say that we are under the influence of fire and thunder of Sinai, while they live under that of Grace.

The worst is that, while in our private lives we could show them the sanctifying power of Judaism, in the few, it is our public affairs which strike them most, and in those they see the mischief of the many; our democracy subverts the Church and the State. Thus, wherever we see bodies act it, we look in vain for the gracious influences of religion. Even in religious transactions, by bodies nominally constituted for religious purposes, we everywhere see nothing but the dominion of the will—the self-will of the unregenerated mass; we hear them contending, clamoring, and following the violence of their passions, instead of submitting to the gentle whisperings of conscience and principle.

The Consistory of France wanted to enter a libel suit against an editor for libellous articles. This would have been irreligious and improper; for what is the matter? Had the impeachments come near the truth, the libel could not have been so great, and by agitating the matter we would only have given it the more notoriety; were the assertions outre—well, they fall to the ground pointless, and expose either the malice, the weakness, or the madness, of the assailant.—Monsieur Veuillot, as will be seen by an item in our columns, is mad with rage, and speaks fire and folly; and the Consistory, being at first carried away by the besetting sin of Israel—passion—would nearly have committed themselves. It therefore affords us pleasure to see them now deliberately mending their error, and retracting.

Such a retraction—such a making good of a body what it spoiled under the influence of passsion—is a rare occurrence in Israel, and shows the true consistency of the Consistory. It is only superior minds that can mend in this way.

Address of the Central Consistory of Israelites of France to M. Cremieux.

SIR:—Your extraordinary pleading of the 8th of September last, before the Council of War of Oran, and particularly the energetic exordium of the same, has produced in Israel a lively sensation, and a sentiment of gratitude which we share, and which we are happy to express to you, in the name of our co-religionists of the Consistorial Conscription of Paris.

Your heart, so eminently Israelitic, has suggested to you, under those circumstances, words which have revealed your whole soul, and which, drawn from a fruitful and sacred source, have commanded the respect even of him who, abusing his position, has directed against the Israelites an attack as violent as it is unjust.

Nothing, indeed, could give a truer and more striking idea of the iniquity of that aggression than your powerful language, by tracing the indelible traits and the immutable principles of the religion of our forefathers, practised by the Israelites of the present day; and, in support of this noble refutation, you were able to cite, with a very legitimate pride, examples of which we have a right to be proud.

The Israelitic cause has ever found in you a champion whose zeal always grew in proportion to the difficulties and obstacles which it had to encounter, whether in your political career or in the exercise of your profession.

We find in the affair of Oran a new and brilliant proof of your efficacious solicitude for the interests of Israel.

May Providence recompense these generous efforts, and preserve for many years that high intelligence and the precious faculties for which you are distinguished, and which are so unreservedly and universally admired!

Please accept, with our congratulations, the renewed assurance of our sentiments of gratitude and high consideration.

THE MEMBERS OF THE CONSISTORY.
G. DE ROTHSCHILD, President.
J. RAHN, Secretary.
ISIDOR, Grand Rabbi of the Consistory.

Reply of M. Cremieux to the Letter of the Consistory.

GENTLEMEN:

I am deeply moved by the letter you lately addressed to me. In all the contests which I have sustained in behalf of our ancient religion, the Consistory of Paris has supported me by its highest approbation.

I lately seized another opportunity to glorify the religion of Mount Sinai. I have zealously removed the insult offered to us in the very sanctuary of justice.—My blood boils at these unworthy attacks, and my age, which God renders peaceful, after so many excitements, is roused with all the energy of my younger years, to remove absurd prejudices, which we have a right to crush under our feet.

The Institute, the Magistracy, the Army, the Bar, Literature, the Arts and Sciences, as well as Commerce and the Bank, present Hebrew names of which we are proud, as Frenchmen. Our young men, since many years, have furnished excellent pupils to the Polytechnic school, and distinguished engineers to this beautiful branch of industry, which changes the face of the globe, and which are mostly under the direction of eminent men belonging to our faith.

Crushed under the weight of an unexampled persecution, which, after 1800 years, yet dares to raise its barbarous head even in Europe, scarce saw the Hebrew population of our France, in 1784, open before itself a career of equality, when, inflamed by a generous ardor, it aspires and nobly elevates itself to the first ranks and to the highest functions.

It is time that, in France, men be Catholics, Protestants, and Jews, nowhere but at church, at the temple and the synagogue. My religious conscience is my own, and owes no account to anybody on earth. Religion is a relation between God and man. The equality of the creeds is perfectly acknowledged before our laws, said an official document lately, and the French press show us that they are equal in point of morals.

Be of courage! In these glorious days, when the world dreams of new destinies, march forward, young Israelites. The column of fire which directed our forefathers in the wilderness is the sun of civilization that enlightens and guides you. Distinguish yourselves by domestic virtues of which your mothers and sisters so well preserve the thread, by their purity of manners and their love of their country, by their devotion to the cause of humanity, by their taste for literature, arts, agriculture, and the study of the sciences—that you may become examples of the most scrupulous probity in your converse, and of integrity in commerce. May you ever be found where good is to be done, or misery to be alleviated.

Since nearly sixty years swayed the generations which preceded us in France, the standard of equality; and it held it with honor. May the present generation and that which will follow, teach, by their example, other nations that equality of creeds, by transforming all the inhabitants of a country into one family, is one of the most solid foundations of social order.

Accept this, gentlemen, as an expression of my high and respectful regards.

AD. CREMIEUX.

JEWISH SENATOR.—The Hon. Judah P. Benjamin has been re-elected a Senator of the United States by the Legislatura of Louisiana, for six years from the 4th of March last.

THE FEAST OF PURIM.

This feast, kept in commemoration of the providential deliverance of our forefathers from the designs of Haman (see book of Esther), will be celebrated this year on Sunday and Monday, the 20th and 21st inst.

The name Purim is a Persian word, meaning Lots, from the lots cast by Haman for discovering an auspicious day for the destruction of the Jewish race in the Persian dominions, by which act the intended execution was providentially postponed eleven months. The root of the Persian word Purim is pareh (a word to be found in the Semitic and Indo-Germanic languages), meaning part, or portion.

During the observance, business is carried on, and work done almost like on every other day. This, like other Jewish celebrations, has immediate reference to the great Cause of Causes—the Almighty—as the guardian and protector of his creatures.

The manner in which it is observed by the Jews abroad, who call themselves orthodox, has, on the whole, a moral tendency. The Purim is a time of rejoicing in the Lord, of remembering his Providence in his retribution to the wicked, and his protection of the guiltless. Tokens of mutual friendship are sent on that day from men to men and from women to women. Our strict biblical and rabbinical laws of chastity do not allow the dubious attentions in the shape of presents which sensuality, in modern times, pays to the sex under the name of etiquette.—Alms are largely distributed among the poor; and great attention is paid to their comforts on this day. Innocent mirth, and masquerades take place, to the great joy of the children.

Certain formulas used after the reading of the book of Esther are highly objectionable and offensive to a religious consciousness of a more elevated moral character than that of men who lived in Asia, 1500 years ago.

DISEASED MEATS.

The injurious effect of consuming diseased meats has been adverted to more than once in our columns. It is beyond doubt that the superior sanitary condition of Israel, as far as statistics reach, is at least partly owing to the fact that the animal food which they use is, before it is brought into market, examined and, if proved healthy, marked with a seal, for the notice of purchasers.

The late trial and conviction of a butcher for selling a diseased cow, which the Bulletin called "disgusting," ought to teach our people on no account to buy any other meat but such as is marked by the shochat. This meat is decidedly of a superior quality—hence, healthier. Our readers need but inspect the sealed meats in the markets to convince themselves of the preference they deserve—particularly as the prices are as low as those of common animal food.

We merely recommend the use of properly-killed meat from sanitary considerations, which, of course, renders it a religious duty to use it in preference to common meat.

The Libels of the Univers.

The paragraph appeared immediately after Prince Napoleon had awarded to the Algerian Jews equal rights with the rest of the population:

"The last of this deicidal race will be pardoned; the offshoots of this miserable band will die in light and the love of the Cross. If they blaspheme Christ over the cradles of their children—if, in the distant countries where they have fallen below the lowest barbarian, there is requisite for their Passover—now become a sacrilege—the blood of a Christian child, or of a priest, in order that having crucified the lamb they may devour it (him) in those who have become his flesh—what else have we to do but to follow the example of the Great Sacrifice, and return them good for evil. But I do not think that any good is done to this people on the one hand by multiplying this detestable industry, and on the other by lavishing on it political favors which only encourage its natural insolence."

A peculiar way M. Veuillot no doubt has of making the cross beloved by the Jews, and of stopping their pretended blasphemies. "You shall not fear me, you shall love me!" shrieked a tyrannical monarch of old into the ears of a trembling subject, whom the sapient King belabored with his cane for having attempted to get out of the way when perceiving the King from afar off.

Vice more Expensive than Virtue.

Prussia, with all its literary and educational establishments, pays for schools, colleges, and universities, about the seventh part of the sum that her army costs. The stastistics of California for schools vs. prisons are as follows:

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction says—"It is lamentably true that during the past five years the State of California has paid $754,193 80 for the support of criminals, and but $284,183 69 for the education of the young. In other words, she has paid nearly three times as much for the support of an average of 400 criminals as for the training and culture of 30,000 children. To make the point still more forcible, the figures show that she has expended $1,885 on every criminal, and $9 on every child."

PROCLAMATION OF QUEEN VICTORIA AS QTEEN OF INDIA.—The proclamation has now reached our shores. For us the following passage is most interesting:—"Her Majesty declares that firmly resting ourselves on the truth of Christianity, and acknowledging with gratitude the solace of religion, we disclaim alike the right and the desire to impose our convictions on any of our subjects. * * We do strictly charge and enjoin all those who may be in authority under us that they abstain from all interference with the religious belief or worship of any of our subjects, on pain of our highest displeasure.

CUBA.—It appears from late Cuban journals that protests against President Buchanan's proposed purchase of Cuba have been sent to the Queen of Spain from twenty-one cities and towns of the island, besides the bishops and ecclesiasties of Havana; the Governor and ecclesiastics of Santiago de Cuba; the ladies of Havana, Matanzas, and Bejucal; the University of Havana; the economical societies of Havana and Santiago; the battalions and squadrons of volunteers of Havana, and the army of Cuba; the Bank of Spain and Havana; the professors in the preparatory and special schools of Havana; the colleges of lawyers and notaries of the same cities, and the tribunal of commerce of Matanzas.

A LESSON.

Scarce had the rush to Fraser River commenced, last year, when the Roman Catholic Church sent nurses and teachers thither—the former to give physical aid to sufferers, and the latter to give instruction to those who needed it. Nor was the Protestant church behind; $75,000 for the support of a Bishop, and $50,000 for that of his clergy, is very respectable. We read that a Bishop and a complete detail of the English Church have been sent to the above-mentioned place. The Bishop is the Right Rev. George Hills. A wealthy lady—Miss Coatts—has given the above sums for the support of the Bishop and his clergy.—This benevolent lady has formerly endowed two other Bishopries.

TO POSTMASTERS.

We return our thanks to the Postmasters of a number of places for their occasional notice to our office, when copies are left at the respective Post Offices uncalled for.

We hereby politely request all Postmasters to whose offices we send the GLFANER, at once to give us notice of copies not taken out of the office, and of occasional removals of parties—specifying at the same time the locality whither they have moved. Subscribers may also be apprised that returned copies ought to be accompanied with the payment for those that were accepted. Postmasters will oblige by a kind attention to the above.

DISGRACEFUL!—The Sacramento Register says that the largest liquor dealers in this city have estimated that the daily consumption of liquors in this State amounts to about 8,000 gallons." Assuming that there are about 500,000 inhabitants in the State, each would have an allowance of five gallons per year at that rate; and the annual consumption would be 2,880,000 gallons. Those fond of calculating might estimate how much poverty, destitution, wretchedness, disease and death, are contained in the 8,000 gallons consumed daily.

PAPER MILL.—The State Register thus remarks upon the Pioneer Paper Mill, located at Taylorsville, Marin county:—"These works are provided with the latest improvements for the manufacture of paper. With their present facilities they are capable of manufacturing six tons of paper per week. The cost of the establishment, complete, is about $92,000. The report, so far, has been most satisfactory, and fully realizes the expectations of the enterprising proprietors.

DAGON AND ZEBAOTH.—We hear that the translation of the tragedy of "Dagon and Zebaoth, by the Rev. H. Bien, which was received with such applause by the German population of San Francisco, will soon be completed, and it will be produced, for the entertainment of the American public, at our city theatres.

THE SUNDAY LAW.—The action of the Assembly on the bill for the enactment of a Sunday law, has been postponed sine die.

To Some Readers in the Country.

The highly creditable list of payments in this number shows what is universally acknowledged by our fellow-citizens—that our people are good payers. However, there are exceptions.

We have, since the first inst, sent bills through the expresses, to the amount of above $200. All that we have received through that channel up to the present time, is $15, of which we had to pay $7 50 for collection on bills paid and returned. The returned bills are of parties that have left their places of residence without notifying us; others have left for the States; and others state that they did not, de facto, subscribe. We think such a plea unfair.

We have repeatedly informed the recipients of the GLEANER, through its columns, that, if they wished to discontinue being subscribers, they need but return a copy, addressed to the "GLEANER OFFICE," refused, (of course accompanied by the amount due for papers accepted, if the amount be for more than a month).

In sending copies to persons recommended to us, we invariably enclose a printed note of a similar purport.

We, therefore, cannot see how gentlemen can can accept copies for from six to eighteen months, and, when claimed upon, state they "did not subscribe."

We hope that our friends will not put us to any unnecessary expense: we hope they will send with every refused copy the amount due for those previously accepted; otherwise they will be considered debtors to the GLEANER, and will be claimed upon for payment, either by express, by mail, or through our columns. However, if the non-payment is owing to reverses, a few words by mail to that effect will be sufficient to be released from all further claims.

We beg that a portion of our readers will take notice, so that we need not in future give room to such a notice in our columns.

A Prescription for a Good Fast on Your Kippur.

The New York Jewish Messenger of Sept. 10th, 1858, gives the following prescription for fasting well on your Kippur:

We would like to recomend to some of our subscribers a sure way of fasting well on your Kippur It is simply pay your debts, and above all, pay your dues to the Jewish Messenger. If you do not, you cannot be included in the priestly blessing of the day. For the sake, then, of passing the day in peace with your conscience, pay your dues, especially to the Messenger.

We read the item some months ago, and passed over it. But finding it copied in Les Archives Israelites, we thought it must be good—hence we give it space in our columns.

The Opinions of Two Wealthy Men.

The attention of business men who wish to prosper is called to the following paragraphs:

"I have always considered advertising—liberally and long—to be a great medium of success in business, and the prelude to wealth. I have made it an invariable rule, too, to advertise in the dullest times—a long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out; as, by keeping my business constantly before the public, it has secured me many sales that I should otherwise have lost.—Stephen Girard.

"My motto through life has been—'Work and Advertise.' In business, advertising is the Philosopher's Stone, that turns everything it touches into gold. I have advertised much, both in weekly and daily papers."—John Jacob Astor.

FAVORS.—We again return thanks to Benevolent Society, on Monday next. Mr. E. Hochstein, of Columbia; to Mr. W. Peyser, Nevada; to Mr. S. Zekind, Folsom; to Mr. Lionel M. Jacobs, Los Angeles, and Mr. L. Friedlander, Downieville,—for favors received.

THANKS.—We return thanks to the Committee of Arrangements for a ticket to the celebration of the First Hebrew

THE tenth anniversary celebration of the First Hebrew Benevolent Society will take place next Monday at Musical Hall.

The Family.

TO A YOUNG MOTHER.

Belinda! the young blossom that doth lie
So lightly on thy bosom,—clasp it there;
For on her brow an empress doth not wear,
Nor in her jewelled zone, a gem more fair,
Or that doth deck her more becomingly.
Forget not then, that deep within thy flower
The germs lie hid of lovelier, holier things:—
Filial affection, that spontaneous spring;
High truth and maiden purity;—the power
Than comes of gentleness;—ay, and more.—
Piety, nourished in the bosom's core:
There, if so cherished, shall thy blossom bear,
And with the dews of heavenly love impearled,
It shall adorn thee in another world.

RISING IN THE WORLD.—You should bear constantly in mind that nine-tenths of us are, from the very nature and necessity of the world, born to gain our livelihood by the sweat of our brow. What reason have we, then, to presume that our children are not to do the same? If they be, as now and then one would be, endowed with extraordinary powers of mind, those extraordinary powers of mind, may have an opportunity of developing themselves; and, if they have not that opportunity, the harm is not very great to us or them. Nor does it hence follow that the descendants of laborers are always to be laborers. The path upwards is steep and long to be sure. Industry, care, and skill, in the present parent, lay the foundation of a rise under more favorable circumstances for the children. The children of these take another rise: and by and by the descendants of the parent laborer become gentlemen. This is the natural progress. It is by attempting to reach the top at a single leap that so much misery is produced in the world. Society aids in making the laborer virtuous and happy, by bringing children up to labor with steadiness, with care, and skill; to show them how to do as many useful things as possible; to do them all in the best manner; to set them an example in industry, sobriety, cleanliness, and neatness; to make all these habitual to them, so that they never shall be liable to fall into the contrary; to let them always see a good living proceeding from labor, and thus to remove from them the temptation to get at the goods of others by violence and fraudulent means, and to keep far from their minds all the inducements to hypocrisy and deceit.

LATENT TALENT.—It seems that Nature has concealed at the bottom of our minds talents and abilities of which we are not aware. The passions alone have the privilege of bringing them to light, and of giving us sometimes views more certain and more perfect than art could possibly produce.

The world is an excellent judge in general, but a very bad one in particular.

YOU ARE NOT SO SICK.

Many of our sufferings are either imaginary, or, at all events, exaggerated.—We generally think our ailments greater than they really are, and this renders the cure more difficult. Rouse yourself, and try to work, and probably you will wear off more than half of your disease. You are not so sick as you imagine. Please read the following story, to which we could add hundreds:

"A distinguished military officer, after fifty years of active service in the cavalry, was attacked with disease. It commenced by his experiencing vivid emotions from the slightest causes; if for example, he heard any disease spoken of, he immediately believed himself to be attacked by it; if any one was mentioned as deranged in intellect, he imagined himself insane, and retired into his chamber full of melancholy thoughts and inquietude. Everything became for him a subject of fear and alarm. If he entered into a house, he was afraid that the floor would fall and precipitate him amid its ruins. He could not pass a bridge without terror, unless impelled by the sentiment of honor for the purpose of fighting."

A Word to Pork-Eaters.

It is asserted that a great deal of the pork consumed for food is affected with the measles; and the measles, again, are said to be nothing but the Larvæ of the common, Tuenia Solium, which, when taken into the human stomach, develop into the full-grown tapeworm, that elongated monstrosity which preys so insidiously on its ignorant victims. As the larvæ seldom loses vitality in the process of cooking, they are eaten unconsciously in large quantities. The moral of this item is—if people will eat the Jewish abomination, let them first be sure that it is not affected with the measles.

RULES OF THE GOSSIPING CLUB.—Any member of this society who shall be convicted of knowing more of his own business than another's, shall be expelled from the society without a hearing.

No member shall sit down to his own table until he has ascertained to a certainty what his neighbors, within three doors of either side of his house, have to eat—whether they have paid for the same, and, if not, whether they expect to.

Every member who shall see two or three persons engaged in conversation, shall place himself between them until he has heard all they have to say, and report the same accordingly.

Every member who shall see a gentleman visiting a lady more than twice, shall circulate the news that they are going to be married; and said members are required to report all manner of things about the lady to the gentleman, and ditto about gentleman to the lady. This will break up matches and afford much gossip.

INCONSISTENCY.—As every man, who is not infallible, is liable to some errors, he virtually lays claim to infallibility, who prides himself on his consistency, on the ground of resolving never to change his opinion or plans; unless, in deed, he qualifies that claim by proclaiming himself either to dull to detect his mistakes, or too obstinate to own them.

Warning.

The carelessness of children at play has often been adverted to. Still, the space devoted to the following will be well bestowed.

The accident which deprived Prescott of the use of one eye, and subsequently so impaired the power of vision in the other, was occasioned by a blow from a crust of bread thrown across the room by a fellow student in Commons Hall, near the close of his college career. This seeming calamity changed the whole current of his life, which he intended to devote to legal pursuits, and finally led him into that brilliant career as a historian in which he has achieved a world-renowned honor for himself and his country.

PARENTS.—In Mariposa there lived a large-eyed beautiful prattler, Mary Cameron. One evening, when all was silent, she looked up anxiously into the face of her backsliding father, who had ceased to pray in his family, and said, "Pa, is God dead?" "No, my child, why do you ask that?" "Why, pa, you never talk to him now as you used to do." These words haunted him until he was reclaimed.

Strive to recommend religion by the courtesy, civility, and condescending character of your conduct.

Mortify lust, sensuality, and sloth.

Shut out all evil imaginations and angry thoughts.
